

UNIVERSITY OF RICHMOND

The University of Richmond is an academically challenging and intellectually vibrant institution committed to enhancing the student experience through integrated coursework, hands-on research, creative expression, and experiential learning.

Richmond ranks among the top 25 liberal arts schools in the country. UR is home to the first undergraduate school of leadership studies and a top 20 undergraduate business school. Other schools on campus include arts and sciences, law, and professional and continuing studies.

UR welcomes about 3,100 undergraduates to campus each year, as well as hundreds of graduate students. Small class settings cultivate student mentorships with our world-class faculty. The result translates to tailored academic courses and personalized attention for our students, helping them harness successes throughout their academic life and beyond.

The University of Richmond generates world-changing research and exports top leaders and scholars worldwide. It is also home to Division 1 athletics. It is committed to engaging with and improving the city and region through internships, civic projects, and alumni relationships.

UR attracts vibrant students from a diverse range of backgrounds and ensures they can afford to attend through need-blind admissions and meeting 100% of demonstrated need. UR also offers the Richmond Guarantee, which guarantees that every undergraduate student receives up to $5,000 to participate in faculty-mentored research projects or internships.

The University of Richmond is under the leadership of Dr. Kevin F. Hallock, an award-winning teacher, labor market economist, and author/editor of 11 books and more than 100 publications. His strategic plan for the university includes the guiding lights — a commitment to academic excellence, belonging and community, access and affordability, well-being and experiential learning, and community engagement.